DETAILED ACTION

This Office Action is in response to the amendment filed on 03/07/2005.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Bale et al. (6,687,601).

Regarding claim 1: Bale discloses a failure diagnostic system for an exhaust pressure increasing device, comprising: an intake channel and an exhaust channel in communication with a cylinder of an internal combustion engine (see figure 1); an exhaust pressure increasing device that increases an exhaust system pressure of said exhaust channel (see numeral 66); an intake system pressure detecting device provided in said intake channel, for detecting an intake system pressure (see numeral 102); an intake valve that selectively allows and prohibits communication between the intake channel and the cylinder (see figure 1) and an exhaust pressure increase failure diagnostic section that determines as to whether the exhaust pressure increasing device has failed according to the detected intake pressure obtained by said intake system pressure detecting device or intake pressure obtained at a time within a predetermined period of time since the intake valve has allowed the intake channel to communicate with the cylinder and a predetermined failure diagnosis reference range (see figure 2; Table 1; column 10, lines 55 to 67).

Regarding claim 2: Bale discloses the exhaust pressure increase failure diagnostic section compares the detected intake system pressure and, the predetermined failure diagnosis reference range, and determines that the exhaust pressure increasing device has failed when a maximum value of the detected intake system pressure lies outside the predetermined failure diagnosis reference range (see figure 2; column 8, line 62 to column 9, line 10).

Regarding claim 3: Bale discloses a failure notifying device that notifies a failure, the failure notifying device notifying a failure when said exhaust pressure increase failure diagnostic section determines that the exhaust pressure increasing device has failed (see figure 2, numeral 166).

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 4-8 are allowed.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments filed 03/07/2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

5. With respect to applicant's argument on page 15: Bale discloses an intake air pressure sensor that is capable of detecting the intake air pressure at all time, including a time within a predetermined period of time since the intake valve has allowed the intake channel to communicate with the cylinder (see figure 1). In addition, as applicant admits, the intake air pressure can be used as the air handling system operating parameter when diagnosing operation of the exhaust throttle (see page 15, second paragraph).

6. While features of an apparatus may be recited either structurally or functionally, claims directed to an apparatus must be distinguished from the prior art in terms of structure rather than function. In re Schreiber, 128 F.3d 1473, 1477-78, 44 USPQ2d 1429, 1431-32 (Fed. Cir. 1997) (The absence of a disclosure in a prior art reference relating to function did not defeat the Board's finding of anticipation of claimed apparatus because the limitations at issue were found to be inherent in the prior art reference); see also In re Swinehart, 439 F.2d 210, 212-13, 169 USPQ 226, 228-29 (CCPA 1971); In re Danly, 263 F.2d 844, 847, 120 USPQ 528, 531 (CCPA 1959).

Conclusion

7. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
